Biggest Little Show On Earth

The Lincoln carnival of 1946 has reached its climax. As the school year swings into the final week, the 12A's present, through the pages of this Senior Railsplitter, the Abes' premier of the State Fair.

For after all, life at Lincoln is not unlike a prolonged version of the state fair—gay on the exterior with carefully concealed mechanisms. Results of this outward show are exhibited at each year's end.

We take pride in our products and strive for the blue ribbons of perfection. In the fields of essay, art, music, and The Railsplitter, we have won these tokens.

Behind a midway pandemonium of ceaseless chatter, eternal eating, hurrying students and best chums, many things have been accomplished.

... And so it is that life at Lincoln is not unlike the Iowa state fair, the biggest little show on earth.

Behind the Colorful and Gay Midway

Behind the colorful and gay midway, the steep roller coaster, the concessions where spun sugar, pop corn, and hot dogs predominate, a delicate balance of efficiency and supervision must be established.

It is in this way that Lincoln is comparable to a great state fair. Back of every show, there must be careful planning and hard work. In the very casualness of such an exhibition, there is beauty—for casualness is beauty carefully perpetuated in order that it seems natural.

At Lincoln, the faculty is hard-working and persevering, and they seek no greater reward than for students to show an appreciative response by loyalty to their alma mater.

Here students are chosen to supervise class activities and committees. They aspire to such positions, because to be elected to a class office is proof of the esteem of one's fellow students.

Now You See It — Now You Don't

Strolling among the booths and concessions of the state fair, one sees many Lincolners busy at various jobs and pleasures.

To the strains of eerie music and rhythmic drumbeats, "Snakehips" Webster does a dance as old as time itself. In close competition, one sees Robert Clay Young who just can't sit still when he hears the strange music.

The can-cans are back in the line again. You will all remember them as Bobbe Darnes, Joyan Botkin, Marilyn Davis, and Katrinka Van Ginkle.

Spinning floss candy with her feet, Patricia Swennumson keeps the crowd agog because of the unusual dexterity of her second toe which is bigger than her big toe.

Barking debonair Dan Hanifen with the spirit of Dan'l Boone so many years gone before, exposes the side shows to the gullible and underprivileged public.

Coming down her alley at a terrific speed, Pat Anderson, of hell-driver and flat tire fame is after a man.

Bob Gustafson, the thrill diver, who leaps from a hundred foot stalk of tall Iowa corn into a wash basin of water, is alarmed to discover that John Bogle, a jack knife below, is thirsty.

Led away by the vice squad, struggling Helen Jean Neff, A.A. representative, protests that she was only making a speech from the corner of the pepsi cola stand when she hit the spot, so to speak.

Judging a baby contest, Mary Grace Wadell, who speaks their own language, chooses Howard Moon as the biggest baby of the year.

Jack Wright, with his usual discreetness, can be seen telling people's weights by looking at them with an experienced eye.

Going about and padlocking the huge gates, throwing lunch cloths over the ferris wheel and performing other such housewifely duties, Richard Stanley prepares to close shop for the night. May he rest in peace.

Femmes of the Fairways

Well-dressed Shirley Reeves, 11B, was elected president of the Girls' Hi-Y. Her supporting court consisted of Frances Polson, vice-president; Agnes Nakamura, secretary; and Marilyn Davis, treasurer.

Under her direction, arrangements were made to tour Lilly's funeral home, Still College of Osteopathy, and the city jail.

A speaker was obtained whenever possible on subjects the girls requested. Among the speakers were Miss Marian Durand, whose subject was make-up, and Miss Shinn, who spoke on the care of the hair, skin, and nails. At each of these meetings, one girl was selected as a model and given a new hair style or had make-up applied correctly.

A representative of the Bell Telephone Company demonstrated the use of the recording equipment and showed movies on the telephone.

Presenting a movie and talk about sex relations, Leon Smith of the YMCA spoke to an all-city girls' Hi-Y meeting.

Concluding the semester, Mrs. Bozena Kalas-kova, a representative of the YWCA in Czecho-slovakia, told of the youth in her native country.

Could It Be The Spring?

Providing a friendly spirit between the schools, the Lincoln senior choirs and soloists appeared at East high school May 7, while the East high musicians appeared at Lincoln in an exchange assembly, May 8.

The East program included numbers by the a capella choir, the boys' quartet, and the girls' sextet. The director of the East program was Miss Sigrid Greenhill.

The Lincoln assembly at East, which was directed by Mrs. B. Pearl Mapel, included vocal solos by Mickey Chiodo and Bob Dippert. Marian Simpson played Chopin's Polonaise in A flat on the piano. The choir also sang several numbers.

Still in the field of music, several awards were received by Lincoln students in the national federation of music clubs, held at Drake University, April 8.

Receiving the highest rating, superior, were Mickey Chiodo and Bob Dippert in voice; and Ralph Caponigro and Jeannette Bierma in piano. Another superior rating was given to Shirley and Jeannette Bierma in a piano duet number.

Anna Ruston, vocal, and Shirley Matson, piano, both received excellent ratings.

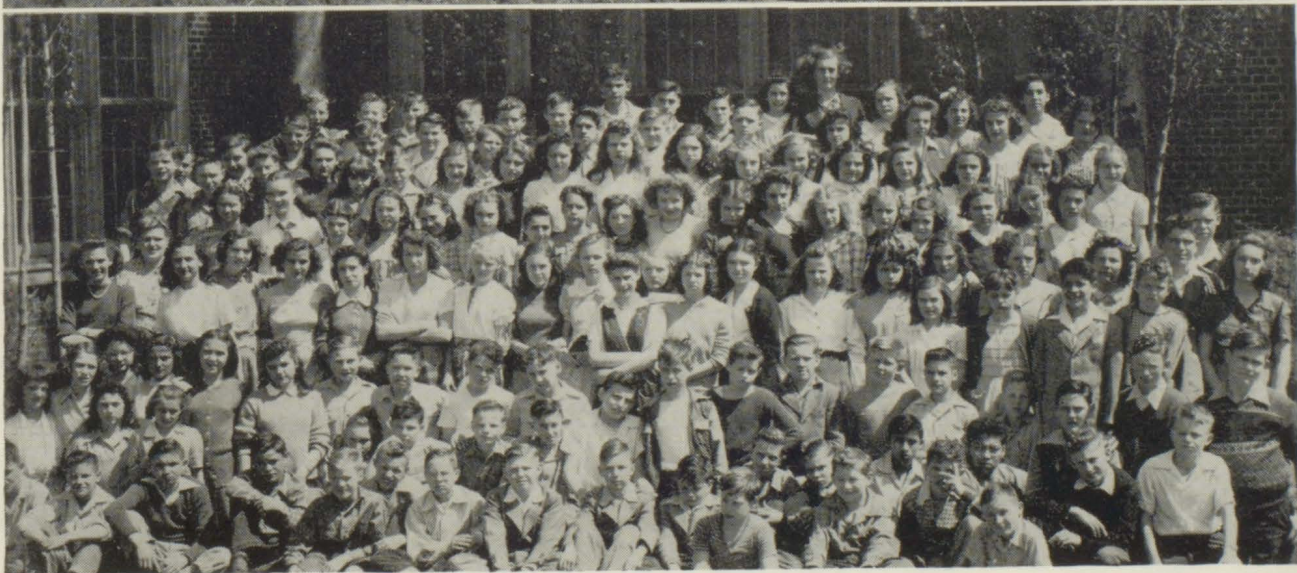

In the state contest, April 22, Mickey Chiodo and Bob Dippert received excellent ratings.

Clothes Maketh the Man — And Woman

Two Lincoln students, Martha Keul and George Croft represented Lincoln at a teen-age fashion show presented by Simplicity patterns at Youngers tearoom, March 16.

Martha came out, looking very smart, in a trim royal blue suit with white accessories. She also modeled a demure blue and black checkered taffeta dress and jacket.

George, whose frequent dealings with audiences make him an outstanding showman, escorted the models and assisted them with their accessories.

Martha was chosen by the home ec classes to take part in the show because of her neat and trim appearance, while George was selected because of his previous experience.

The Judges, Judged!

Proving that teachers are just as fun-loving and sportish as anyone, a teacher talent assembly was presented March 29.

Mr. Grabau gave a slightly blurred version of "The Village Blacksmith." "'Smith, Smith,' don't you get it?" queried the master of ceremonies, trying to give us the high sign that Miss Mary-alyce Smith was coming on with hats and all.

The Sweet Potato Kids, Mr. Cox, Mr. Tomlinson, and Mr. Dalby also exhibited their dexterity on the sweet potato or ocarina, depending on your dictionary.

Miss Scanlan, like a true colleen of Erin, came chanting out and no one recognized her for a few bewildering moments.

Miss Ebers came out and "kilt" us, (a pun, son) with a true highland fling straight from the "brakes and braes of bonny Dune."

Mr. Trissel and Miss Cluckholn played piano duets and Miss Cluckholn sang the "St. Louis Blues" to conclude the program.

The local hillbillies and blue singers really got a buzz from Miss Sylvia Hardy whose expressive face tells all.

The men teachers with their throaty renditions rendered the reckless, rambling womenfolk weak with such numbers as "Thinking of You," courtesy of Lorin Graaff, "By the Bend of the River" and "Iowa, It's a Beautiful Name," courtesy of Ralph Tomlinson.

Mrs. B. Pearl Mapel sang "Spring is Here" and followed this by the beautiful, "My Hero" from the Chocolate Soldier.

Midway Footwear

"Flat foot floogee or floydoy" is a name which will aptly be applied to the Lincoln gals if they don't mend their ways, according to Dr. M. A. Royal, school physician.

No more moccasins, casuals, and loafer shoes says the ever-present doctor.

Miss Helen Dunkelberg, school nurse says a few minutes of exercise a day will help to get your feet back to pre-moccasin standards.

Incidentally, the scientists say that the average graduate of today wears a size 7½ shoe to mother's 5. Excuse me while I go home and exercise.

This Year's Big Time

Four Lincoln students got the thrill of a lifetime when they were chosen as representatives for the junior town meeting of the air preceding a forum address by Mr. Harold E. Stassen, former Governor of Minnesota.

The students chosen were Helen Neff, Gerald Winkleman, Glenn Martin and Kenneth MacRae. Each student gave a three minute talk on the subject, "Can We Change German Youth?" The remaining time period of the half hour program was devoted to answering questions from the audience. Miss Alice Holmes proved indispensable in aiding the students with their talks.

Radio station KRNT transcribed the Lincoln program and broadcast it at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, March 5.

After this broadcast Glenn Martin and Gerald Winkleman competed for a bid to speak over the BBC British transatlantic town meeting of the air. Judges of the tryouts in which the two students appeared were: Mr. Forrest Spaulding, city librarian; Mr. George Cremeens, KRNT; and Mr. N. D. McCombs, superintendent of the schools.

The Honor Is All Hers

Beverly Foes, 12-A, was chosen as a candidate to the D.A.R.

Four candidates were chosen by the 12-A girls. After the student elimination, a faculty committee selected the person whom they believed filled the specified D.A.R. requirements of: dependability, service, leadership and patriotism.

Although Beverly did not place in the contest, the honor of being chosen such a candidate should not be forgotten.

Blue Ribbon Scholar

William Thronson holds the highest scholastic record for the June '46 class.

First of 118 members, William's position surprised many people who weren't aware that behind Bill's sober and dignified exterior there was a lot of larnin'. Joyann Botkin and Helen Neff rated second and third respectively.

A Main Attraction

Lincolmites did a wonderful job of selecting officers of the senior student council. Quiet George Hall became more respected than ever as the unobtrusive president, while Dan Hanifen, buoyant and full of ideas, was elected vice-president.

Dolores Mickesh, whom Lincolners know as a saucy, gay little miss took on the duties of secretary, which, in the council involves a lot of paper work.

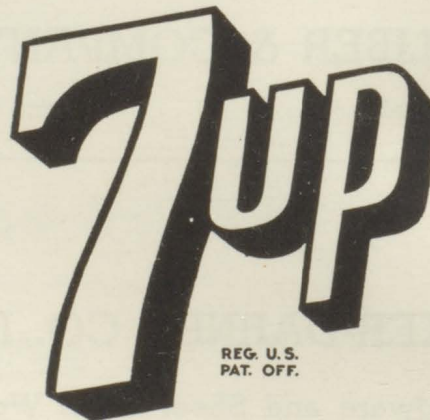

Joyann Botkin, the girl who participates in Hi-Y, Railsplitter, golf and tennis, shows proof of her versatility as treasurer of the controlling influence of the student body.

These kids all did a grand job and showed what can be done in a democratic society.

The Big Top

Lincoln's first Lincolnite of the last semester featured a George Washington dance February 23, in the boys' gym. Bob Young, assisted by Ralph Hayner did a fine job. Buddy Popple's band furnished the music and the affair was a huge success.

IT LIKES YOU!

Lincoln Version

The talent assembly with dancer Joann Wimer, singer Charlene Wright and prize dedicator Gerene Witter finished off the affair. George Croft was m.c.

Another Lincolnite, the Spring dance was presented March 23, in a whirl of paper hats, green and white streamers and flowers.

A talent show was presented during intermission. Peggy Webster danced and Joann Tam entertained with her puppets. Other entertainment followed and the dance again made money.

The Greenies Become Salted Performers

The green horn staff became the regular Rail-splitter staff, February 14, with the capable theatrical, Jack Wright heading a class of 31 as editor-in-chief.

Joy Cook served as feature editor and the athletic, twice monogrammed Dick Hollingsworth proved his merit as sports editor.

Four efficient gals with an eye for balance took over the job of make-up. Bobbe Darnes and Katie Van Ginkel were co-make-up editors for the front

Joann Wimer became staff artist and since that time she has really done a lot for the regular Railsplitter and the Senior Rail.

Of the original 31, Jimmie Parisi, advertising manager, Glen Thomas and George Croft; reporters are now in the service.

Six papers, excluding the greenhorn paper have been published this year.

Pedigreed!

A cash award of $35 was won by Richard Christenson, 11B, as a first prize winner of the "Iowa" essay contest.

Richard's manuscript has been sent to the district jury where it will be considered among other county winning essays for the state prize of $250 or a scholarship to any Iowa college. Richard says that the money he has already received will go into the bank for use toward his college education.

Another award to the school was the all-American rating to the Railsplitter by the National scholastic press association.

It's Wise To Make College Plans Early . . .

More students than ever before are continuing their educations beyond high school. Today's world is hungry for trained men and women in scores of fields to which higher education is the key. And under increasingly complex conditions, the personal satisfactions to be obtained from knowing more are also greater.

You can continue advancement at Drake University by starting in either the summer session, June 10, or the regular fall term September 16. This year's summer session will be the largest in seven years with wide course offerings for every need.

If you'd like to know more in connection with your college plans please call 5-1161 or visit the University campus. We'll be glad to help. Early application for admission is advised because current enrollments are double those of last fall and further increases are expected.

The Railsplitter has always received first class ratings in the years that the paper was submitted, but this is the first time the superior rating has ever been received.

Another honor came to the Railsplitter this spring when it received top place rating in the All-Iowa critical service for school newspapers. Prof. English of the journalism department of the University of Minnesota, who served as judge of the Iowa papers, wrote on the bottom of The Railsplitter rating sheet: "A paper you should be proud of!"

In the field of art, three honorable mentions were won in the Iowa high school scholastic arts contest. Girls so distinguishing themselves were Jean Gillaspay, 12A; Gloria Ratcliffe, 12A; and Marilyn LaPorte, 11B.

Fair Managing Board

Chosen editor-in-chief of this semester's Senior Rail, Joy Cook selected an efficient and business-like staff.
